REMAINS OF LESSER FOUND IN A CABIN

The decomposed remains of C A Lesser, a surveyor who has made his headquarters at the old deserted village of Navarro for a year or more, were found in a cabin at that place last Saturday by Dave Crockett and his brother. Crockett and others had often wondered what had become of Lesser as he had not been seen or heard from for several months and his disappearance began to excite considerable curiosity. These gentlemen finally decided to go to the missing mans cabin and make an investigation. James Coyle, who has had charge of the Navarro property for several years, had heretofore refused to allow anyone bother Lesser's cabin fearing that the latter would return and create a disturbance if his things were molested, says the Mendocino Beacon.

Crockett and party, however forced an entrance to the cabin. Their search was rewarded by finding the body of Lesser in the cabin. The body was in an semi-incumbent position and all indications made it conclusive that Lesser had been dead several months. He was lying partly on his bunk, which was low, and partly on the floor. Between his legs was a shotgun, the muzzel end being in his mouth. A large section of the top of his skull was blown back and hung by dried skin. Blood and brain matter bespattered the walls. In his fingers was clutched the stick which he had used in pushing the trigger of the gun which blew out his brains.

The high water of last spring had entered the cabin and had floated every movable thing and had left a heavy deposit of mud upon the floor and the legs of the deceased.

The jury, empanelled by Acting Deputy Coroner Murray, brought in its verdict at Albion Monday to the effect that deceased's name was Carl Andreas Lesser, was 60 years of age (the Great Register of last year says 55 years), and that he was a native of Denmark, that he came to his death on or about March 15, 1907, from the effects of a gunshot inflicted by himself.

Undertaker Johnson brought the body here and buried it Thursday on the hill. His relatives, who live in the east, have been notified by Justice Murray No property of value is known to exist although it was supposed that he had some money.

JUDGE ARMSTRONG SHORT OF FUNDS

Justice of the peace Armstrong of Hopland was arrested Tuesday night on a charge of embezzling the funds of Court Duncans Peak, A O F of Hopland. The amount missing from the treasury is supposed to be in the neighborhood of $900 and has been in the custody of Armstrong who has been treasurer for the past four years. The preliminary examination has been next set for Tuesday before Judge Crockett.

The case is a sad one as Armstrong has an invalid wife and four children. He has been justice of the peace and a road overseer in the first district and is known as a hard working man He has no property and is unable to replace the missing money.

Last Bear Flag Survivor

The raising of the Bear Flag at Sonoma in June, 1846, is a matter of history and our citizens will be glad to know that Henry Beeson, the last survivor of that interesting event is in Point Arena visiting his daughter, Mrs D Miller. Mr Beeson came over from Boonville on Wednesday where he had been living with Mrs Maud Brown, his youngest daughter, says the Point Arena Record.

HUNTERS LEARN TO PLAY DEERHOUND

Since the new deer law one of the chief sports of the season is to go into the brush and play deerhound. With little practice, the average hunter can learn how to bark in a lifelike manner. A few of them get shot at this sort of work, but that is all in the game.

The state law against using hounds is making good dogs out of many deer hunters. It adds zest to the sport of deer hunting to get down on all fours and bay like a hound. Some of the more enthusiastic of the huntsmen have adopted artificial tails, which wag automatically when they go in search of the deer. This practice, however, is not approved of by the Game Commission, as it is held that no true sportsman should deceive the animal in this way.

Since the hound law has been passed the accounts of deer hunting trips read something like this: "A party of sportsmen left Podunk to-day in search of velvet horn. Only two were killed and three wounded. Mr Blibbetts was one of the party, and succeeded in being shot twice, once in the arm and once in the leg. As this is the third time that Mr Blibbetts has stopped bullets this year, we believe that he has bagged the limit of lead, and ought to quit."—W O M'Geehan in S F Chronicle.

Italians Pay For Experience

Judge Crockett gathered in $85 from two Italians living near the Sonoma county line who had been living on quail. John Piotti, Joe Farraria and Charles Tollini were arrested and brought to this city for trial. The first and last named plead guilty and number one was fined $25 for hunting without a license and $25 for having quail in his possession during the close season. The other was fined $15 for having quail in his possession during the cloe season and $10 for hunting without a license. The evidence against Farraria was not very strong and he was allowed to go his way in peace.

Return From The East

Mr and Mrs J H Barker returned Friday from the east. They visited Niagra falls, Saratoga, Coney Island and all the large eastern cities. They report a very pleasant time but are glad to be home again.

GROCERYMEN WILL NOT RUN WAGONS

Hoppicking commenced at the Higgins ranch yesterday and in a very few days pickers will be busy harvesting the beer blossoms on every field in the valley. The grocerymen have decided not to run any wagons to the fields this year and it is reported that a $50 forfiet has been posted. This will force the growers to furnish the necessities of life to their pickers or else guarantee the payment of the bills.

It is understood that this is the outgrowth of the refusal of the growers to protect the merchants on their bills. The hoppickers are a migratory set and it is hard for the groceryman to keep run of them. Most of the strangers buy on credit and if the grocer does not keep a man in the field all the time the picker is apt to draw his money and skip. The result is that the grocer at the end of the season is apt to find that his profits have all been eaten up by bad bills.

Pipe Organ Arrives

The $1500 pipe organ for the M E Church south arrived Monday and will be set up in time for services Sunday. It is a fine instrument and the members of the church are pardonably proud of it.

The Uniform Rank in Camp at the Grove

The encampment of the U R K P in this city is proving the social event of the season. The camp is crowded every night with spectators and Castellos band is the center of attraction. The band is really one of the finest that ever visited this city and certainly can furnish excellent dance music. It consists of twenty pieces. Their concerts in front of the court house and at the grove have been highly appreciated and the dance platform has been crowded every night. Drum Major Emmerson is no small attraction for the ladies.

The camp is very prettily arranged having been laid out by Sergeant Blume of Vallejo and the white tents with the camp streets make a very pretty tent city. The camp is lighted by electric lights and the driveways are lit with Chinese lanterns. Col Marks' headquarters tent is located in the center and is well stocked with refreshments for the guests. In front of the camp stands a tall flag pole which carries a splendid thirty-foot flag kindly loaned by W A S Foster of Willits for the occasion.

The commissary department under the management of Captain Keller of Willits is well provided. Chef White and his assistants serving up meals that are highly appreciated by the boys as well as the invited guests who have been present at meal times. The large dance platform however is probably one of the most attractive features of the camp for the visitors It is well lighted by electric lights with a large arc in the center. Captain Kent was fortunate in having selected a fine grove of trees for its location and when lighted up and the dancers are on the floor the scene presented is a very pretty one.

The following officers are on the camp roster: Order camp, Major J M Mannon, Ukiah, brigadier general's staff; Col Abe Marks 5th regiment Cal Brigade: Major Davidson, Vallejo, 2nd batallion; Colonels staff: Surgeon Major G W Stout, Ukiah; Adjustant Capt S A McDonald, Talmage; Quartermaster Capt Gardener, Fort Bragg; Commissary of Subsistance Capt J J Keller, Willits; Signal Officer, Capt H W Smith, Vallejo; Sgt Major Marion Osborn, Ukiah; Quartermaster Sgt G H Blume, Vallejo; Commissary Sgt W O White, Ukiah; Chief Trumpeter Balach, Vallejo.

The following are the officers of the companies encamped at the grove:

Fort Bragg Company number 17: Capt Frank E Weller, 1st Lieut Chas Mero; 2nd Lieut, John E Weller, Sgt Edward E Brown, Sgt Horace A Weller, Guard Alfred Ras Mussen, Sent Guy V Weller.

Washington Company number 49, Vallejo: Capt Chas A Peacht, 1st Lieut J R Downing, 2nd Lieut John Ross, Sgt Frank W Savage, Sgt Frank H Wetmore, Sgt Leslie E Evans, Sgt Albert Smith.

Schaffner Company number 29: Capt L C McCloud, 1st Lieut Geo L Smith, 2nd Lieut Vic C McClure, Sgt Warren Fugitt, Sgt J Louis Charlton, Guard Leslie G Reed, Sent Chas H Raines.

Fidelity 55 Napa, Capt Harry Wood, 1st Lieut W H Howe, 2nd Lieut M McKinzie, Sgt P J Hein, Sgt Earl Wilson, Sgt Geo Rutherford, Sgt John Jasper

Wednesday night the degree team of the Healdsburg lodge put on the third degree in the amplified form in the Odd Fellows hall which was witnessed by a large crowd. A number came down from Willits to witness this degree. The Healdsburg boys are reported to have done the work up in fine shape. A banquet had been prepared in the banquet room and all present gave the feast their attention until the small hours.

While the Knights were at the hall the camp was turned over to the ladies who entertained visitors in royal style. Ice cream and cake galore was provideed and a splendid program rendered. The following is the program: Piano Duett, Miss Vie Brown, Mrs Ray George; Vocal Solo, Miss Bessie Howard; Trombone Solo, Ralph Duncan; Vocal Duett, Miss Bessie Bartlett, Mrs E Beilby; Recitation, Miss Louise Ames; Clarionet Solo, D R Wambold; Accompanyist, Mrs Ray George.

Mrs J M Mannon was selected as colonel and was in charge of the camp. The following ladies were her staff officers and assisted in the entertainment. Surgeon, Major R B Stout; Adjustant, Capt J Preston; Quartermaster, Captain K Donohue; Commissary, Capt V M Eversole; Signal officer, Capt F White; Assistant surgeon, Capt M Charlton; Sergeant Major, L Duncan; Quartermaster sergeant, M McCloud; Commissary sergeant, M Sandelin.

The concensus of opinion was that the lady soldiers did exceptionally well and the military orders were carried out in a manner that could not be surpassed.

Tonight there will be a military dance at York & Clelands hall given by Schaffner company and the music will be furnished by Castello's band. It promises to be one of the most popular dances of the season and will undoubtedly be well attended. Tomorrow the Knights will visit Santa Rosa on the excursion.

All together the week has been a very pleasant one for Ukiah. The visiting Pythians have thoroughly enjoyed their stay and the people of Ukiah have enjoyed having them here. They are a very gentlemanly lot and have conducted themselves as perfect gentlemen. A great deal of credit is due Col Abe Marks for having secured the encampment for this city. A number of larger cities were bidding for it but the colonel insisted on having his regiment come to this city. He has maintained his reputation as a host and headquarters has been a favorite resort as there has always been a cool drink for the thirsty. The colonel is an ideal commander and is a favorite with the boys of his regiment.

Faith In Mendocino County

E G Lewis of Alameda was in this city Wednesday on his way home after a visit to his ranch at Westport. With his brother he has just purchased the M L Turner property which includes a fine body of redwood timber. Mr Lewis states that he has traveled all over the United States and a part of Europe and that Mendocino county is the place for him. He said that he can trace his ancestry back for over one hundred years through a line of lumber men and that he has so much faith in the lumber business that he is buying redwood land.

Model Hotel For Wendling

The Weddling hotel is nearly completed. It will have fifty rooms and and billiard parlors on the lower floor. There will be no dining room or saloon in connection. It is owned by the company and it is designed to better the accomodations of their employees.

Little Girl Breaks Arm

Eva Miller, the daughter of Mr and Mrs Otto Miller, while playing with other children at Low Gap, fell and broke her right arm. She was brought to this city and the fracture reduced.

BOARD TAKES STEP TO FIND THE COST

Chairman E G Case of the water mass meeting appeared before the board of city trustees in accordance with the resolution adopted by the mass meeting and presented the resolution that was adopted requesting the town board to instruct the city engineer to prepare plans and specifications and an estimate of the cost of an adequate municipal water system. The board considered the resolution favorably and City Engineer Donohoe was instructed to prepare the plans and estimates at the earliest possible date.

The figures secured will be referred to the mass meeting for discussion by the citizens. It is the opinion of a great many that Ukiah should own its own water system especially as the contract made with the Snow Mountain Water & Power company covers current enough to do all the pumping without any extra cost to the town. The figures secured will give the citizens a chance to discuss this question in an intelligent manner and allow them to determine the practibility of a municipal system.

A Cent A Pound For Picking

The price for hoppicking has been set at $1 a hundred for those who stay the full time and seventy-five cents a hundred for transient pickers. This is a very generous move on the part of the hopmen and is the same price paid when hops were up. As the out look for hop prices is very bad this year this shows that the hop growers will stand the fall in prices themselves and not try to shift it to pickers.

Dumont S At Santa Rosa

Louis Charlton took Dumont S down to Santa Rosa with him and will drive him around town this week in his fine rubber tired buggy. Dumont is a full brother of Sonoma Girl who is the phenomenal racer this year. Dumont S is in fine shape and should attract a great deal of attention from the horsemen at the Santa Rosa meet.

New Principal Arrives

Prof Noel H Garrison and wife of Stockton and B F Butterfield and wife and Mrs T L Butterfield of San Jose arrived in town this week. They will take up their residence in the Curtis house on North State street Prof Garrison is the principal of the Ukiah high school.

TAN BARK HAULER DEAD UNDER BARK

Charles Colwell was found dead in Sherwood Wednesday under a load of tan bark. It is not known how the accident happened as he was alone at the time. Colwell was a Healdsburg boy about twenty-three years old and bore an excellent reputation. An uncle of the deceased and Coroner of Blackburn came up from Healdsburg Wednesday night and took a team from this city for Sherwood.

Working On A Big Fill

The Wendling rail road is being pushed as rapidly as possible and the graders are now working on a twenty-seven foot fill this side of Wendling the dirt for which is being taken out of a heavy cut. The fill is a long one and will require a great deal of earth.

A Model Ledger

Assistant School Superintendent Babcock has devised a new ledger for the school superintendents office which is said to be a model. Surveyor H J Randall drew up the model. The book is now in use and will greatly simply the work of the office.

Mrs P W Handy and daughters returned yesterday from a visit to Mr and Mrs J N Rea at Mendocino. They have been absent about a month.

A HUNTING PARTY FINDS RUSTY GUN

Mat Burke and party have just returned from a camping trip on Sanhedrim and report finding a 30-30 Winchester just below impassable rock. A pair of pants were found near by. Search however failed to reveal and skeleton and the find remains a mystery. The gun was rusted so that it could not be worked and the cartridges in the magazine bore evidence of exposure. The gun was a takedown model and looked to have been an expensive model. It is thought that it has probably been out a couple of years.

No one remembers of any hunter having been lost in this section recently but as their is so many in the hills every year it is possible that the owner of the gun perished and that the knowledge of his disappearance never reached this city. It is also possible that some hunter got lost and threw away his gun but was afterward rescued.

A Good Side Show

One of the most entertaining events of the evening at the grove Wednesday night was the side show stunt put on by the Vallejo boys. Some of the acts were very clever and no one is reported to have been disappointed or buncoed—a very unusual thing at a side show or even the good old fashioned circus. The snake charmer, bosco, the strong man, the tattooed man and all of the other phenomenons were in evedence to make the side shows a success.

Doings Of The City Fathers

The saloon license held by Doc Riorson has been transferred to F G Ungewriter, recently of Santa Rosa, by the board of city trustees. So far the only party who has appeared before them sitting as a board of equalization and asked for a reduction in assessment is T L Carothers who appeared in behalf of his wife in regard to a piece of property on Dora street. No action has been taken so far in the matter.

Also Broke Into Jail

Bill Gibbons broke into the school house at Hearst one day this week and mashed out a few windows and otherwise disarranged the premises. He was arrested and taken to Willits and Judge Snow gave him twenty-five days in the county jail. Marshal Smith accompanied him to this city.

BOWLING ALLEY AT LAUREL DELL BURNS

A fire broke out in the bowling alley at Laurel Dell between three and four o'clock Wednesday morning and completely destroyed that place of amusement. Fortunately the fire fighters succeeded in keeping the blaze from the hotel and other buildings. The bowling alley was an old building located on the hill above the barns and the loss was not very heavy.

Visitors From Oklahoma

Henry N Berry with his wife and daughter, Mrs Boland, are spending a few weeks in Ukiah with the view of learning something of California and the conditions to be met with here. They are from Oklahoma, the land of cyclones and tornadoes, and after having traveled over the greater part of California, state that the terrors of earthquake are scarcely worth considering when one knows of the havoc that is wrought by the elements in the land from whence they came. The will probably locate in this county.

Louis Glazer of Lake county is over this week on a business visit. He was formerly a resident of this county but this is his first visit here in several years.

for being so entirely unlooked for. That the story was true she could not doubt. Her mother would not have cabled except under the gravest circumstances. What alarmed Shirley still more was that she had no direct news of her father. For a moment her heart stood still. Suppose the shock of this shameful accusation had killed him? Her blood froze in her veins, she clinched her fists and dug her nails into her flesh as she thought of the dread possibility that she had looked upon him in life for the last time. She remembered his last kind words when he came to the steamer to see her off and his kiss when he said goodby, and she had noticed a tear of which he appeared to be ashamed. The hot tears welled up in her own eyes and coursed unhindered down her cheeks.

Suddenly she heard a familiar step behind her, and Jefferson joined her at the rail. The wind was due west and blowing half a gale, so where they were standing—one of the most exposed parts of the ship—it was difficult to keep one's feet, to say nothing of hearing any one speak.

"It's pretty windy here, Shirley," shouted Jefferson, steadying himself against a stanchion. "Don't you want to walk a little?"

He had begun to call her by her first name quite naturally, as if it were a matter of course. Indeed, their relations had come to be more like those of brother and sister than anything else. Shirley was too much troubled over the news from home to have a mind for other things, and in her distress she had turned to Jefferson for advice and help as she would have looked to an elder brother.

He was sorry for Judge Rossmore, of course, and there was nothing he would not do on his return to secure a withdrawal of the charges. That his father would use his influence he had no doubt, but meantime he was selfish enough to be glad for the opportunity it gave him to be a whole week alone with Shirley.

Thus events, combined with the weather, conspired to bring Shirley and Jefferson more closely together. The sea had been rough ever since they sailed, keeping Mrs. Blake confined to her stateroom almost continuously. They were therefore constantly in one another's company, and slowly, unconsciously, there was taking root in their hearts the germ of the only real and lasting love—the love born of something higher than mere physical attraction, the nobler, more enduring affection that is born of mutual sympathy, association and companionship.

Jefferson had been casting furtive glances at his companion, and as he noted her serious, pensive face he thought how pretty she was. He wondered what she was thinking of, and suddenly inspired no doubt by the mysterious power that enables some people to read the thoughts of others, he said abruptly:

"Shirley, I can read your thoughts. You were thinking of me."

She was startled for a moment, but immediately recovered her self possession. It never occurred to her to deny it. She pondered for a moment and then replied:

"You are right, Jeff, I was thinking of you. How did you guess?"

He leaned over her and took her hand. She made no resistance. Her delicate, slender hand lay passively in his big brown one and met his grasp frankly, cordially. He whispered:

"What were you thinking of me—good or bad?"

"Good, of course. How could I think anything bad of you?"

She turned her eyes on him in wonderment; then she went on:

"I was wondering how a girl could distinguish between the feeling she has for a man she merely likes and the feeling she has for a man she loves."

Jefferson bent eagerly forward so as to lose no word that might fall from those coveted lips.

"In what category would I be placed?" he asked.

"I don't quite know," she answered laughingly. Then seriously she added: "Jeff, why should we act like children? Your actions, more than your words, have told me that you love me. I have known it all along. If I have appeared cold and indifferent, it is because"—She hesitated.

"Because?" echoed Jefferson anxiously, as if his whole future depended on that reason.

"Because I was not sure of myself. Would it be womanly or honorable on my part to encourage you unless I felt I reciprocated your feelings? You are young. One day you will be very rich. The whole world lies before you. There are plenty of women who would willingly give you their love."

"No, no!" he burst out in vigorous protest. "It is you I want, Shirley—you alone."

Grasping her hand more closely, he went on, passion vibrating in every note of his voice: "I love you, Shirley. I've loved you from the very first evening I met you. I want you to be my wife."

Shirley looked straight up into the blue eyes so eagerly bent down on hers, so entreating in their expression, and in a gentle voice full of emotion she answered:

"Jefferson, you have done me the greatest honor a man can do a woman. Don't ask me to answer you now. I like you very much. I more than like you. Whether it is love I feel for you, that I have not yet determined. Give me time. My present trouble and then my literary work"—

"I know," agreed Jefferson, "that this is hardly the time to speak of such matters. Your father has first call on your attention. But as to your literary work I do not understand."

"Simply this: I am ambitious. I have had a little success—just enough to crave for more. I realize that marriage would put an extinguisher on all aspirations in that direction."

"Is marriage so very commonplace?" grumbled Jefferson.

"Not commonplace, but there is no room in marriage for a woman having personal ambitions of her own. Once married her duty is to her husband and her children, not to herself."

"That is right," he replied; "but which is likely to give you greater joy—a literary success or a happy wifehood? When you have spent your best years and given the public your best work, they will throw you over for some new favorite. You'll find yourself an old woman with nothing more substantial to show as your life work than that questionable asset, a literary reputation. How many literary reputations today conceal an aching heart and find it difficult to make both ends meet? How different with the woman who married young and obeys nature's behest by contributing her share to the process of evolution. Her life is spent basking in the affection of her husband and the chubby smiles of her dimpled babes, and when in the course of time she finds herself in the twilight of her life, she has at her feet a new generation of her own flesh and blood. Isn't that better than a literary reputation?"

He spoke so earnestly that Shirley looked at him in surprise. She knew he was serious, but she had not suspected that he thought so deeply on these matters. Her heart told her that he was uttering the true philosophy of the ages. She said:

"Why, Jefferson, you talk like a book. Perhaps you are right. I have no wish to be a bluestocking and deserted in my old age, far from it. But give me time to think. Let us first ascertain the extent of this disaster which has overtaken my father. Then if you still care for me, and if I have not changed my mind," here she glanced slyly at him, "we will resume our discussion."

Again she held out her hand, which he had released.

"Is it a bargain?" she asked.

"It's a bargain," he murmured, raising the white hand to his lips. A fierce longing rose within him to take her in his arms and kiss passionately the mouth that lay temptingly near his own, but his courage failed him. After all, he reasoned, he had not yet the right.

"It's a bargain," he murmured.

A few minutes later they left the deck and went downstairs to dress for dinner. That same evening they stood again at the rail watching the mysterious phosphorescence as it sparkled in the moonlight. Her thoughts traveling faster than the ship, Shirley suddenly asked:

"Do you really think Mr. Ryder will use his influence to help my father?"

Jefferson set his jaw fast and the familiar Ryder gleam came into his eyes as he responded:

"Why not? My father is all powerful. He has made and unmade judges and legislators and even presidents. Why should he not be able to put a stop to these preposterous proceedings? I will go to him directly we land, and we'll see what can be done."

So the time on shipboard had passed, Shirley alternately buoyed up with hope and again depressed by the gloomiest forebodings. The following night they passed Fire Island, and the next day the huge steamer dropped anchor at quarantine.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, "heart-burn," sour "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

PLAINTIFF GETS THE FIRST BLOOD

A test case was tried before Justice A H Parker on Tuesday in the Manchester creamery affair which has agitated the stockholders of that concern for some time, says the Pt Arena Record.

A number of the creditors placed their bills in the hands of J W Hall, for collection, and he proceeded to assess each stockholder pro rata for the amounts, but W C Davidson, the largest stockholder, considered the proceedings unfair and refused to pay. As assignee for his mother, Mr Hall sued Mr Davidson for $13 35, his share of the bill. J W Patton appeared for Mr Davidson, but the justice considered the evidence favorable to the plaintiff and rendered a verdict accordingly for the amount with costs.

BUYING OLD FIDDLES.

Many Fine Instruments Have Been Picked Up Cheap.

Great numbers of fine old violins and violoncellos that come into the high class market of London are procured through the medium of advertisements inserted in obscure country papers and especially those of ancient cathedral cities.

Of course few of the fiddles thus obtained are veritable masterpieces, but a great many of them are fine examples of early English and foreign makers, and they are often bought for ridiculously small prices by a group of experts, who have brought the business to a lucrative system. Many a struggling family of long descent, in some out of the way part of the country, happens to see in the one county newspaper of the week that good prices are given for old fiddles, and some long forgotten instrument in a lumber room or put away on a shelf suddenly comes to mind.

Correspondence follows. The dealer sends a deposit in order that some fiddle spoken of may be sent to him and examined, and he usually replies that the instrument sent is dilapidated and but so-so generally, but that he is willing to give 30 shillings or £2 for it. In a great many cases the offer is accepted offhand, and in this way most of the finest fiddles extant of the second class come into the hands of dealers. Only lately a cello that came from a Shropshire farm at the price of £2 sold the same day to a west end dealer for nearly £100.

One of the most shrewd and respected of all these dealers was until a year or two ago a humble member of the orchestra of a London suburban theater. He began to advertise in remote papers to the greatest limits of his scanty wages and is now one of the most extensive and prosperous dealers in the trade.—London Tit-Bits

A SILLY TRAGEDY.

The Duel Between Tom Porter and Sir Henry Bellasis.

Some of the royalists who were forced to endure the English commonwealth seemed to console themselves for the dullness of life under a Puritan government by fighting as many duels as they could compass, so that ignoble squabbles and foolish plots make up the history of their days.

Tom Porter was of a family which had zealously served the king. Under the new government his occupation was gone, and he descended to a triviality of life which finally involved him in a most pathetic event. This was a duel which he fought with his friend, Sir Henry Bellasis, and which, says Pepys in his "Diary," is worth remembering for "the silliness of the quarrel, * * * a kind of emblem of the general complexion of the whole kingdom."

But, silly as the quarrel undoubtedly was, it carried in it an element of heartbreak.

The two young men involved were intimate friends and companions, but one day, "being merry in company," Tom Porter said he should like to see the man in England who would dare give him a blow. With that Sir Henry Bellasis struck him a box on the ear. The inevitable duel followed, wherein each was wounded. Sir Henry proved to be seriously hurt, so he called Porter, kissed and bade him fly.

"For," said he, "Tom, thou hast hurt me, but I will make shift to stand upon my legs till thou mayest withdraw, for I would not have thee troubled for what thou hast done."

Porter profited by his friend's generosity and escaped to France. Sir Henry died a few days later, and Pepys concludes, "It is pretty to see how the world do talk of them as a couple of fools that killed one another out of love."

Spying on Bargain Gifts.

The engaged girl was found studying life in an auction room.

"I don't expect to buy anything," she said, "but I want to see if anybody I know buys anything. A lot of auctioneers are advertising that they have on hand bric-a-brac and pictures and odds and ends of furniture suitable for wedding presents. That set me to wondering if any of my friends would try to avail themselves of these auction room bargains when buying presents for me. I saw two girls here this afternoon who have been invited to my wedding. One bought some kind of a brass bowl, another a vase. They got the things dirt cheap. I fancy they are for me. If they are—well, just wait till those girls get married!"—New York Press.

When to Take Off the Sinker.

For angling in quiet, deep running water more sinkers should be placed on the leader to keep it down from the surface, but if angling in a quick running brook or river for chub, dace or brook trout the float and sinkers should be removed and the bait allowed to run in front of the angler wherever it wills on the surface by the action of the current, which takes it naturally just as nature does their general food.—Louis Rhead in Outing Magazine.

A Long Tumble Needed.

"They say that when a man is falling from a height he thinks of all his evil deeds."

"I don't believe it."

"Why not?"

"Some men would have to fall out of a balloon to get 'em all in."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
